Dorling Kindersley; $26.99.

The ZODIAC XL aircraft kit is prominently featured in a new book from DK Publishing titled "GO! The Whole World of Transportation." The 240-page full-color book features great photography and illustrations that take the reader on an amazing visual journey through all major modes of transportation (air, water and land). Technology is explained, and exploded anatomies of selected vehicles show just how complex - or simple - their mechanics are. The ZODIAC XL kit aircraft is featured in a visually stunning foldout poster, with all the kit components laid-out and labeled, right down to the smallest items such as the Avex blind rivets or cotter pins.

"We're pleased that the editors chose to include kit airplanes in this comprehensive book on transportation, and of course we're thrilled that they picked our Zodiac XL as the airplane to feature," stated Sebastien Heintz, president of Zenith Aircraft Company, which manufactures the Zodiac XL kit in Mexico, Missouri. A stock Zodiac XL Quick-Build Kit was used for the photo montage, with the pre-formed aluminum parts and sub-assemblies laid out for the illustration of what a light aircraft is made up of.

The popular Zodiac XL is an all-metal two-seat light aircraft designed by veteran aeronautical engineer Chris Heintz, and can be built from plans-only, complete or component kits, as well as from the popular Quick-Build Kit in just a few hundred hours. A factory-assembled Light-Sport Aircraft (S-LSA) version is also available from Aircraft Manufacturing and Development (AMD) of Eastman, Georgia.

With its superb photo illustrations and informative facts and information, this new hardcover book makes an interesting read to the young and old alike, especially if you're a fan of the popular Zodiac XL kit aircraft. The book makes a great gift for the holidays and is now available nationwide.
